His Country Needs Umpire Barclay at Niagara Falls Meet

Woman Sport Scribe Discovers in "Bark" One
Swell Little Mediator—
She Also Digs Up Comparisons That Are Odious

BY SALLY JACOBS

"Fair is foul, and foul is fair," so sang the grand stand at Grant Park yesterday afternoon as decision after decision was handed down by Mr. Umpire.

You don't mind my calling him that do you, my dear, for in all the noise and confusion I didn't quite learn his name, in fact I do not think it is generally known because what the fans called him seemed to be just words, and the kind you scold little boys for using and wonder where on earth they heard such dreadful things.

It wasn't treating him nicely, to say the least, when everyone could see he was doing his best to please. He entered beautifully. The only trouble was that the audience didn't always agree and of course to be popular he felt he had to give both sides what they wanted.

Mr. Dave Goldberg explained it to Dolly and me. "Your umpire," he said, "is always willing to square matters. If he makes a rotten decision he'll turn around and make another to even things" so you see I was really right about it—he was trying to make good.

I'll tell you how Mr. Goldberg happened to be there. Dolly is a clever child, you know, and remembered way back about six years ago Mr. Goldberg was manager of the Phoenix Browns.

"Let's get him," said Dolly, "and let him compare the old fashioned game with modern ball." My but I was grateful for the idea and it worked out very well indeed, only my dear's word I'll have to get the short end of it. I can't tell you what Mr. Goldberg said. I'll tell you when I see you, he can't be done in print. It isn't that I fear a libel suit for the Republic—it's much worse than that—and if I believe in anything it's chemically pure journalism. Scoop was also at the game and after he had singled out Mr. Goldberg he whispered in English of his particular American brand. "The old timer is a come-back and then can hang a few on these ginks."

"Yes, thank you, he was glad to come, but I don't think he has any hard feelings toward these boys or would care to see them hang," I replied. I felt that Mr. Goldberg was my guest and I had to be nice about it but he did yell the most absurd things that I didn't understand, plays that I presume were popular last century such as "Give it him round the ear," "Crowd the plate, choke the bat; there's a two-bagger for you." Right then and there I made up my mind at any cost I'll always keep up with the times.

A little chap in the box next to ours was given a bottle of soda pop and mother said, "Drink it slowly and it will last a long time," and that's the way the Mesa-Phoenix players evidently thought for at the beginning the game dragged fightfully.

"They're not doing anything yet," I offered apologetically as hostess. "Yes they are. They are playing poor ball," responded my guest. Scoop smirked exasperatingly.

"Who'd you have here?" he asked. "The Wichita boys. Three after wards went to the National League and two to the California League. Cy Young was pitcher. Heals Becker went to New York and Dick Bayless is with Venice."

They "do you remembered" folks while I gave my undivided attention to the field in time to see poor crippled Manager Barrett make a gorgeous homer and bring in three.

"How does that compare with the past?" I asked enthusiastically. "They do fairly well for amateurs, but until these boys learn how to play don't compare them with professionals. It's not much of a game today, only good in spots. That one-handed catch made by Lewis was classy and that Krause boy will make a good pitcher some day. As for Barrett he's all right. Half past five—good heavens, a game of this kind should not take over an hour and forty-five minutes. I'm off."

"In case you are interested," I called after him, but he had gone.

PASSED BALL LETS IN THE WINNING RUN

After One Bad Inning,
Phoenix Blanks Mesa and Slowly Creeps Up to a Winning Stride — Long
Game, Many Turnings

That cross-eyed, hump-backed, red-headed, double-jointed fuzzy jinx worked 80 hard yesterday that Phoenix got the most runs in a game which Mesa earned.

Tapping those lucky hits off the delivery of Harris, who was air tight until the fifth inning, Phoenix batters made up just half the lead Mesa had stored away in the first two sessions. Then in three more innings, Phoenix sank up and tied the score in the ninth—and with Griffen on third base, two out, two strikes and three balls on Sloane, Morris lost a hot pitch, it rolled to the grand stand and the ground rules made it possible for Phoenix to score the winning run.

Strangely enough, it was that poor cripple Barrett, who started things for the locals. Generally when a pitcher goes to the outfield and then becomes manager of a team, it means the clerk has struck twelve for him as a player. But in spite of a nasty fall in center field and a twisted ankle, sustained at just the right time to prevent the score, from assessing a tremendous error, Barrett was able to bat. He took the only possible way to score—hitting the sphere high over the right field fence. Like an able strategist, he saved that wallop until the bases happened to contain two comparades, and the result was a three run contribution. In the very next inning—the sixth, Barrett came to the pan with the same two men on the same two bases. He fanned.

In space No. 8, with one of the same pair on one of the same identical bases, Barrett again approached to save the day. But it would be rubbing it in to state that he again whiffed, and again scored the final out.

But the shock—the absolute unexpected thing, was the bit of Lefty Anderson. Lefty is a pitcher, who can pitch. He has never had much of a reputation at the bat. When in the sixth inning, Warren received a hot liner in the left eye off Brown's bat, Lefty was forced to go in and assume a short stop position. When next his turn came to bat, Anderson faced Harris with Griffen on second. Griffen had just forced Barton, who had been hit by a pitched ball. In trying to make it a double play, Core had hurled the ball into the automobiles.

Andy took the limit, swinging in a back breaking manner at pretty nearly everything offered. But Harris floored to groove the last one, letting the other southpaw return as gracefully as he might. Andy outmuscled the heavier, caught the ball right on the seam and dropped it within six inches of a home run.

It was almost the same play that gave Anderson his next distinction. But this time he bent 'er too far in and that voracious Rolly Pomeroy gobbled it in deep centerfield.

Poor and Brilliant

The game was a poor thing until the fifth inning housewarming. Mesa made five runs in the first off two walks, a wild pitch, an error, two safe bunts and a three bagger by Williams. In the second, on an error, a stolen base and a single, Mesa scored her last tally. There was little to lighten the load of Phoenix's care until Barrett limped into that fast one of Harris in the fifth. The fact that Kid Krause was consistently blanking the Jewels after their first two innings of luck, did not cheer the locals very much. It was a positive, not a negative result they needed.

Flashes of brilliance were added to an ordinary dull game by Chief Lewis who after erroring a man on first, took a hot throw one handed and hurled Williams out in the very air above second base.

Big Griffen, playing for the very first time in a Phoenix uniform authorized the publication of the statement that you can't get 'em too wide or too high for that tall first snoker.

With Barrett and Warren both crippled—the latter had enough to restore him from the game—the infield looked like a red cross camp. Warren's eye is in pretty bad shape, but not seriously injured.
